

As a resident of the state of Indiana, I am very pleased with the effectiveness of the Indiana Telephone Privacy law in maintaining my privacy. As a business owner, I see no legitimate reason for any changes as suggested by the banking industry. Business has many other legitimate ways of contacting and soliciting clients without using phone or fax to intrude into private lives and time. The state of Indiana has a model that is working to the satisfaction and relief of Indiana residents that does not impede business concerns or markets. I strongly urge the rejection of any attempt to weaken the Indiana law.
